

Beverly Hoffmaster

Beverly Hoffmaster is a 1974 graduate of Martinsburg High. She received her BA from Shepherd University and her MA from West Virginia University. Bev has continued her relationship with Berkeley County Schools first as a teacher for 16 years, then as an instructional leader, and currently as an instructional specialist.

Bev was selected the Berkeley County teacher of the year and went on to be selected the WV Teacher of the Year in 1992. She is famous for her application of the children's story of "The Little Engine That Could" in telling her students that all things are possible.

Bev has received numerous awards including being selected as outstanding alumna at both MHS and at Shepherd.

